Wildsparq Tips

Ever wondered which posts end up on the Team Stream?

Look out for the bold blurb "As a reminder, the Team Stream is a public feed and is viewable by any Wildsparq user in your organization" to know when your discussion is Team Stream-bound. And don't worry, your examples remain private, and you can edit a post on Team Stream just in case.

Your personal impact statement, which is the final lesson task, along with your thoughts on the bonus resources, will be public on the Team Stream.

If you're having difficulty with functions on Wildsparq, please let us know, and we'll provide assistance!

Soar & Share

Hello, my amazing Metro Family!!!

I had the recent honor and privilege of spending time with two EXTREMELY important groups: Our Lead Aviation Maintenance Technicians and our customers. At our Lead Tech Seminar, we were all blown away by words from Cord Sachs, CEO of Wildsparq (yes, THE GUY!). Mark Breton, Director of Maintenance Part 135, and Britney Ratcliff, Director of Human Resources, had the forethought to bring him in, and WOW! What a great message that all of us needed to hear.

Then, the very next week, we were blown away AGAIN with words from Dr. Rick Rigsby (yes, THAT Rick Rigsby, who we've all seen in the "Legacy" lesson in Wildsparq!) Needless to say, it has been an incredibly inspirational couple of weeks.

Key takeaways from both:

5:1 Ratio (must have 5 positive "deposits" for every 1 negative "withdrawal")
Do Hard Better
Always Start with Why

Reach out to me ANY time if you'd love to know more...

But, I must say, beyond all that, the BEST takeaway was just being with YOU. We have the absolute BEST OF THE BEST. All of you. What amazes me even more is that you have ALL stepped up your already remarkable games to the next level by being students of Metro U!!!

Thank you for blessing Metro with your time and talent. YOU are what makes this organization GREAT and I am so very thankful for every single one of you!
